California Section AIPG - UC Davis Student Section Meeting at UC Davis, Wednesday October 4, 2017; 7 pm (Lecture)

SPEAKER: Rob Campbell, P.G., C.E.G.

TITLE: *Technical and Business Expertise as a Professional Geologist and Business Owner

Rob Campbell is back by popular demand! Rob is an engineering geologist and a business owner of GeoSolve, Inc. He is also a UC Davis graduate and a mentor in the popular Operation Unite[®] internet radio show, "Meet Your Mentor". He has given popular talks to UC Davis students in 2012 and 2014. Participants were asking him the hard questions about making a reasonable living and being a professional geologist at the same time. Come hear Rob divulge his creative answers to really tough career choices and listen to his mentor radio show at www.operationunite.co/blogs.

Biographical Sketch

Mr. Campbell has over thirty years of experience as an engineering geologist, hydrogeologist and business owner. He has worked on numerous complicated geologic projects and legal cases and believes strongly in mentoring geology students. He has been an active AIPG Student Mentor since 2012.

California Section AIPG – Sonoma State University Student Section Meeting at SSU in Rohnert Park Wednesday, November 1, 2017; 7 pm (Lecture)

Presentation Title: “Do You Swear...?” - The Role of the Geoscientist in Environmental Litigation

Abstract: Environmental litigation often involves technical issues requiring the assistance of geoscientists, including hydrogeologists, hydrologists, modelers and geologists to understand and resolve disputes in civil and criminal courts, and alternative dispute resolution hearings. Expert witnesses commonly provide testimony to assist the parties, the jury and the court in understanding complex technical issues. Additionally, geoscientists not serving as expert witnesses are often called to present testimony to explain to the court what work they may have done involving the site or the matter in dispute. It is likely that most environmental geoscientists will receive such a subpoena sometime during their career. This presentation discusses the role of the geoscientist in court using actual case examples, and provides guidance for those encountering this aspect of the legal system.

Interviews Skills Mastery

On December 6, 2017, Steve Baker (photo at left) of Operation Unite in Nevada City, California will lead a conference call with help from Jim Jacobs of Clearwater Group. They will discuss the secrets of job hunting, networking, and interviewing. In the December 2016 conference call, we had almost two dozen students and several professional geologists participate.

The purpose of the conference call is to provide an opportunity for the listening audience, and call-in and mentors to share the perspective of an employer when seeking to hire a person and articulate the do's and do not's when making contacts, writing resumes, cover letters and interviewing for a job.

Below are the topics to be covered by the conference call:

- Getting Leads, Attending Meetings, Introducing Yourself
- Resume Writing and Cover Letters
- Telephone Interviews
- Office Interviews
- Questions from Listeners

Meet Your Mentor Internet Radio Program

The American Institute of Professional Geologists and the National Groundwater Association are making the Meet Your Mentor program visible and accessible on their websites and association members.

One of the most satisfying situations in the professional world is to make contact with a mentor who is seasoned in your discipline of choice. Radio host and geohydrologist Stephen Baker is making this possible through the production of the “Meet Your Mentor™” internet radio series produced by Operation Unite® and Living Water® programming. It couldn't be easier for AIPG members. Just Click on the Meet Your Mentor™ icon on the AIPG home page and be catapulted to the Operation Unite® Mentor webpage. The radio programs are showcasing our very own Robert Campbell (speaking at the October 4th student section meeting at UC Davis) with eight prerecorded shows. The radio programs support the “Young Professional Pilot Program”; it is good for geoscientists and is of benefit to employers.

AIPG California Section September 2017 Newsletter

AIPG and Operation Unite® promote high integrity and ethics for our profession. They do this together with their experienced members and up and coming and motivated professionals, young and old. Farshad Asl stated:

“Millennials don't want to be managed, they like to be led, coached and mentored. This generation is on fire and ready to go. Are you ready to change the world?”

Meet Your Mentor™ connects real mentors in water-related industries with listeners who seek great careers that make a difference in our communities. Listen and engage.

INVITE OTHER UNIVERSITY EARTH SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

The quality of our meetings is dependent on a filled room of enthusiastic students that come from a variety of earth science departments. Diversification and passionate excitement is just what you need to build your momentum. Go directly to any earth science department student, professor or department head and ask them to invite their students to our student chapter meetings. It will make a big difference.

In sum, we are all extremely busy, and sometimes breaking away for a lunch or dinner meeting is difficult. Free conference calls are just one more way to have meetings and connect with students and professionals alike. Please contact Steve Baker to tell him of other topics of interest for future conference calls (stevebaker@operationunite.co).
